

This page: 1. The computer desk, resting over a sea-grass rug, is made of wood and topped with a limestone work surface. Corn-silk-colored walls play off the white woodwork, 2. What crib is complete without a few fuzzy friends? 3. This bedroom is home to an antique rug—the first household purchase Jennifer and Brian ever made together. "We made it work in the room with sienna-colored walls," says Jennifer. 4. A simple white table and chair are all set for tea time in their daughter's room. 5. A dash of pink in a lampshade and some throw pillows add little-girl fancy to this cozy nest. 6. "In the baby's room, soft and feminine were the ideas," says Jennifer. 7. Bright colors make for a happy little girl. 8. The changing table in the nursery holds little shoes as well as towels and washcloths. Opposite: Jennifer's daughter specifically requested a bright blue bedroom. "I wanted it to be a little French and a little bit girly—with lots of whimsy that would suit her personality," says Jennifer. "All of the furnishings are different shades of white, and the carpet is like a perfect off-white woolly sweater." CH For more information, see Sources beginning on page 140.
